Prominent Business Man Chosen
Cashier of the

EVERETT BANK

Brief Sketch of Busy and Prosperous
Career of Former Prothonotary.

On Saturday, June 12, George W. Derrick, one of the most prosperous and progressive business men in the county, took charge of the Everett Bank as Cashier, a position which he is well qualified to fill.

GEORGE W. DERRICK

Mr. Derrick received his early training in the public schools of Perry County and at the Bloomfield Academy, New Bloomfield. Having taught school several terms he attended Allen's Business College, Elmira, N. Y., from which institution he was graduated in 1883. In 1884 he entered the employ of the Huntingdon and Broad Top Railroad Company as an operator at Saxton, and the following year was promoted to agent at Everett, which position he successfully filled for 19 years. In 1904 he was elected Cashier of the First National Bank at Saxton, which institution he opened. In 1905 Mr. Derrick was elected Prothonotary of Bedford County. In that office, it is asserted by the oldest members of the local bar, he has had few equals and no superiors.

He became a partner in the Everett Bank in 1905 and a director of that institution as well as of the Saxton First National. In addition to the work outlined, Mr. Derrick has been engaged in the coal brokerage business since 1903 and is now the owner of the Miller Run Colliery at Coalmont.

The Everett Bank was organized in 1885 by the late Hon. E. F. Kerr, former editor of The Gazette. It is one of the largest and most profitable banking houses in the county, and is destined to prosper under the administration of the new Cashier, who is well qualified for the position.

William C. Oster

William C. Oster died in the Johnstown Hospital Thursday of last week of blood poisoning, aged 28 years, five months and two days.

On Sunday preceding his death he and his wife were at his uncle, Solomon Mock's, near Johnstown, when he began to complain of a drawing of the muscles in his leg, but thought it was rheumatism. His wife was on her way here on a visit to her parents and other relatives, but as his condition grew worse she concluded to return with him. He went to work on Monday and kept at it until Wednesday afternoon when he became much worse and was taken to the hospital where he died at 2 o'clock the next day. His misery was so great that he had to be strapped to his couch to keep him from doing himself violence.

Funeral services were conducted in the Bortz Lutheran Church Sunday afternoon and interment was made in the Smith Cemetery, Rev. Green officiating.

Mr. Oster leaves to mourn their great loss his widow, two small children, his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Sperry T. Oster, three brothers, Scott at Cumberland, John and Hugh at home; two sisters, Mrs. Harry Deremer in the Valley and Miss Pearl at home.

Centerville, Pa., June 17.

Y., and Miss Esther H. of Saxton.

Mrs. Kennedy was a consistent member of the Presbyterian Church for over 60 years, and showed her Christian fortitude in the way she bore her suffering in her last illness.

NICHOLAS E. ROUDABUSH

River Dragged in Vain—Large Number in Searching Parties—Funeral at Mann's Choice.

The body of Nicholas E. Roudabush, whose unfortunate death on Thursday, June 10, was reported in last week's Gazette, was discovered floating in the stream Tuesday morning of this week.

Thursday afternoon, June 10, F. W. Smith and Nicholas E. Roudabush, returning from work, attempted to cross the creek at the Hershiser crossing in an open buggy. While in the stream, which was considerably swollen, Mr. Smith was giving full attention to his horse when Roudabush fell into the water. Smith made an effort to catch him but failed. The body was carried into the deep water. When Smith made an effort to turn his horse and drive below Roudabush in the stream, his buggy was upset, his horse tore loose and pulled Mr. Smith, who held to the lines, to the bank, the buggy being carried down stream about a mile.

A search for the body was made Thursday evening, all possible means being used without avail. The search was continued throughout Friday and Saturday by many in the community. Sunday the whole community turned out, and delegations from Schellsburg, New Buena Vista, Bedford, Wolfburg, Point and other places joined in the search, lining the creek for several miles. On Monday the search was continued, but it was not until Tuesday morning about 8 o'clock that the body was discovered by Mrs. Milton Harline and her little boy, floating upon the stream about 800 feet below his home, just below the Mullin bridge.

The body was taken to the undertaking establishment of H. F. W. Miller where an inquest was held, after which it was prepared for burial.

The funeral service was conducted in the M. E. Church at Mann's Choice by Rev. G. W. King at 4:30 on Tuesday. The services were largely attended. Interment was made at Mt. Olivet Cemetery below town.

Nicholas Ealy Roudabush was a son of Jacob and Drucilla Roudabush, and was 18 years, three months and four days of age. He is survived by his mother, one brother and one sister.

At the time of his death he was president of W. C. No. 421, Pa., P. O. S. of A., at Schellsburg. He was a young man of good habits and was especially kind to his widowed mother.

James E. Shires

Our community was startled Monday evening when the news reached here that James E. Shires, a former well-known resident of Bedford, had died suddenly in Pittsburgh, to which place he had gone from his home in Mansfield, O., on a business mission.

James E. Shires was a son of the late Peter H. and Hannah Shires and was born in Bedford on March 29, 1848, and died on June 14, 1909, being at the time of his death aged 61 years two months and 15 days. He was educated in the public schools and at an early age engaged in the mercantile business. He was Treasurer of the county from January 1879 to January 1882, and was a member of the Borough Council and School Board a number of terms. Early in life he united with the Methodist Episcopal Church and was a consistent member of the same. Mr. Shires was one of the most popular men that ever lived in Bedford.

He is survived by his wife, Anna Keyser Shires, who was daughter of the late William Keyser, and by two daughters, Miss Cecelia, a student at Allegheny College, Meadville, and Miss June at home. He is also survived by the following sisters and brothers: Mrs. Mary Blymyer and Miss Ettie W. Shires, of Bedford; Mrs. E. L. Deffenbaugh of Altoona; Mrs. Robert Canan of Johnstown, H. P. Shires of Bedford, and Dr. B. F. Shires of Patton.

His remains were taken to his home in Mansfield where the funeral took place on Wednesday.

Mrs. Hannah Diehl

Mrs. Hannah Diehl, wife of Adam Diehl, died at her home near New Buena Vista Friday morning June 11, after a lingering illness of several months. To all appearances she seemed better, when all of a sudden the Death Angel came and she was no more.

Mrs. Diehl was the mother of six children, one of whom preceded her to the spirit world some years ago. She is survived by her husband and five children, and will be greatly missed by all. She was aged 68 years, five months and 28 days.

The funeral services were conducted by Rev. C. Gumbert, assisted by Rev. C. W. Warlick, her former pastor, on Sunday, June 13, 1909, at the Reformed Church on the Ridge. Interment was made in the cemetery at that place.

Deeds Recorded

THE PAPER KITE

Once on a time a paper kite
Had mounted to a wondrous height,
Where, giddy with its elevation,
It thus expressed self-admiration:

"See how yon crowds of gazing people
Admire my flight above the steeple!
How would they wonder if they knew
All that a kite like me could do!
Were I but free I'd take a flight
And pierce the clouds beyond their sight;

But ah! a prisoner, lo! I'm bound
By this vile cord so near the ground!
But let me go without a string,
And I'll outstrip the eagle's wing."

It tugged and pulled, while thus it spoke,

To break the string—at last it broke;
Deprived at once of all its stay,
In vain it tried to soar away;
Unable now its weight to bear,
It fluttered downward through the air;

Unable its own course to guide,
The winds soon plunged it in the tide;

O foolish kite! thou hadst no wing,
How couldst thou fly without a string?

My heart replied: "O, Lord! I see
How much the kite resembles me;
Forgetful that by Three I stand,
Impatient of Thy ruling hand,
How oft I've wished to break the lines

Thy wisdom for my lot desires!
How oft indulged a vain desire
For something more or something higher!

And but for grace and love divine
A fall thus dreadful had been mine."

DR. E. E. HALE DIES

Venerable Chaplain of Senate Identified With Great Movements of This Country.

Boston, June 10.—The morning light was breaking as the venerable Rev. Edward Everett Hale, D. D., chaplain of the United States Senate, Unitarian divine, philanthropist, author, journalist and lover of peace, breathed his last today in his home in Roxbury. At the bedside were his aged wife, his daughter, Miss Ellen D. Hale, and his son, Philip L. Hale, the artist. Two other sons—Arthur Hale of Washington, and Prof. Edward Everett Hale, Jr., of Union College—returned home this evening. There is another son, Herbert, an architect. Tomorrow it is expected.

It seemed today as if the whole country joined in mourning the loss of Dr. Hale. Messages expressing sorrow and esteem poured into the Hale household, one of the first being from President and Mrs. Taft. Early ones were from Samuel L. Clemens and Julia Ward Howe.

As an author Dr. Hale's fame rests on his short stories, such as "The Man Without a Country." As an instigator of the social uplift the work of the two great organizations the Lend a Hand Clubs and The King's Daughters will always add to his renown; as a minister and pastor his half century in the pulpit of the South Congregational Church and his preaching in many other churches were prolific of wise spiritual inspiration, while as a historian his writings have become authorities.

It was Dr. Hale who, twenty years before its consummation, predicted a world-wide peace tribunal; it was Dr. Hale who upheld Garrison and Phillips Brooks in anti-slavery work; it was Dr. Hale whose benevolent counsel brought comfort to the sick and wounded soldiers on the battlefields of the Civil War.

Dr. Hale was born in this city in April, 1822, and by training, education and tradition he represented throughout the eighty-seven years of his life the stock and spirit of the founders of the Massachusetts Bay Colony. He was one of the oldest alumni of Harvard, having been graduated from that institution with the class of 1839. He had been actively connected with the Boston Advertiser many years ago, and his first charge as a clergyman was a church in Worcester.

The South Congregational Church of Boston became Dr. Hale's ministerial home in 1856, and it was there that his most famous sermons were delivered. For more than forty years he preached to old and young and was an active worker in the social uplift. Since 1899 Dr. Hale had been pastor emeritus of the parish.

His books and hundreds of articles dealing with many subjects were written in Dr. Hale's picturesque home on the pudding stone heights of Roxbury. A study packed from floor to ceiling with books, pamphlets, curios and scientific instruments, even the ceiling of which was utilized, hooks being driven in to hold baskets containing literary material, was his workshop.

Especially noteworthy were Dr. Hale's seventieth and eightieth birthdays, at both of which public meetings were held. In 1892 a purse of $5,000 was given, and in 1902 a fund of $28,000 was raised.

The funeral services, which were very simple, were conducted on Sunday, all Boston and many men participating.

NASAL CATARRH

F. W. Jordan Sells the Great Remedy That Cured Mrs. Karberg.

Here is a very simple yet wholly sincere statement of a Michigan woman, who was cured by using Hyomei—the no cure no pay remedy for catarrh, asthma, hay fever, croup, coughs and colds.

"A bad case of catarrh was cured for me by the use of Hyomei. The trouble affected my head, nose and eyes, and was very annoying and disagreeable, and the cure, from the use of Hyomei, was very gratifying. Hyomei has from me a strong recommendation and endorsement."—Mrs. E. Karberg, 213 Kingsley St., Ann Arbor, Mich., Nov. 16, 1908.

Thousands of just such letters are in existence, and thousands more would be but for the desire to avoid publicity.

If you have catarrh, bestir yourself, and drive it out of your system. Kill the germs. You can do that easily if you use Hyomei (pronounced High-o-mei).

It is a dry, antiseptic and very pleasant air, that when inhaled, quickly relieves all forms of catarrhal inflammation, stops snuffles, hawking and blowing. The price for a complete outfit, including inhaler, is only $1.00 at F. W. Jordan's.

To filter the blood is the kidneys' duty. When they fail to do this the kidneys are sick.

Backache and many kidney ills follow; Urinary trouble, diabetes.

Doan's Kidney Pills cure them all. Bedford people endorse our claim. Jacob Chamberlain, retired, W. Pitt St., Bedford, Pa., says: "I suffered from rheumatism and kidney disease for years and nothing I took helped me in the least. There was a constant dragging down pain through my back and a soreness across my kidneys. I was also lame and stiff in the morning and the kidney secretions were irregular in passage, causing me great annoyance. I had heard a great deal about Doan's Kidney Pills and deciding to try them, I procured a box at Dull's Drug Store. I received such great relief from the use of this box that I continued, until I was entirely cured. I am glad to acknowledge the benefits I derived from this sterling remedy."

BORN IN BEDFORD

Mrs. Ann Monroe Now Past the Century Mark.

The following is taken from an article from Mitchell, Ore.:

Living in this county is a woman over 100 years old. She is Mrs. Ann Monroe, daughter of David Mann. She was born in Bedford County, Pa., November 3, 1808, making her 100 years old November 3 last.

When she was two years old her father removed to Greene County, Pa., which move she declares she can distinctly remember. In 1820 her parents moved again, immigrating to Belmont County, O. Here she remained until 1850, when, with her husband, W. B. Monroe, to whom she was married August 5, 1829, she came westward to Iowa, settling in Van Buren County, but moving in a short time to Appanoose County.

In 1865 the family crossed the plains to Oregon, settling in Lane County, where they resided until 1869, and then came to what was then Wasco, but now Wheeler County. Here Mrs. Monroe has since resided.

Although having lived for nearly three-quarters of a century in frontier communities, she escaped any troublesome experiences with Indians.

Mrs. Monroe, notwithstanding her extreme age, makes her own bed daily, can sew for hours at a time without showing any signs of weariness. Her eyesight is good, she wears glasses only to thread her needle when sewing and when reading. She gets up and down with comparative ease and moves about as spryly as do many at three score and ten; is not confined to the house, but spends much of her time strolling about the yard and orchard.

Mrs. Monroe is the mother of eight children, four of whom are living. Her father lived to the age of 92, and her grandfather to 84.

Foley's Honey and Tar is especially recommended for chronic throat and lung troubles and many sufferers from bronchitis, asthma and consumption have found comfort and relief by using Foley's Honey and Tar. Ed. D. Heckerman.

BETSY'S BATTLE FLAG

From dusk to dawn the livelong night,

She kept the tallow dips alight,
And fast her nimble fingers flew
To sew the stars upon the blue.

With weary eyes and aching head
She stitched the stars of white and red,
And when the day came up the stair
Complete across a carven chair

Hung Betsy's battle flag.
Like shadows in the evening gray
The Continentals filed away.

With broken boots and ragged coats,
But hoarse defiance in their throats;
They bore the marks of want and cold,
And some were lame and some were old,

And some with wounds untended bled,
But floating bravely overhead
Was Betsy's battle flag.

When fell the battle's leaden rain,
The soldier hushed his moans of pain
And raised his drooping head to see
King George's dragoons turn and flee.

Their charging columns reeled and broke,
And vanished in the rolling smoke.
Before the glory of the stars,
The snowy stripes and scarlet bars

Of Betsy's battle flag.
The simple stone of Betsy Ross
Is covered now with mold and moss.

But still her deathless banner flies,
And keeps the color of the skies.
A nation thrills, a nation bleeds,
A nation follows where it leads,

And every man is proud to yield
His life upon a crimson field
For Betsy's battle flag.

THE HORSEMAN.

Watering often is far better than waiting till a horse is almost choked and then letting him have all he can drink. Many horses are spoiled by the latter method, while no one ever hurt a horse by frequent watering.

Selecting Work Horses.

In buying a horse for work on the farm don't select a nervous, high strung animal. One with plenty of bone and muscle, that takes a hearty interest in the feed trough and is wide between the eyes will give more satisfaction.

Feeding the Foal.

To encourage the colt to eat solid foods I have found it a good plan to moisten a little bran with milk or sweetened water, says a horseman. A double handful of grain prepared in this way will make a good ration for a foal three times a day during the first month it is put on feed. At the end of the first month the ration should be increased one-half and at the end of the second month doubled which quantity may be continued as about the proper ration until weaning time.

Correcting a Depraved Appetite.

When horses eat dirt and show a depraved appetite a veterinarian advises liberal bran mashes once a day and a tablespoonful of the following powder morning and night in feed: Powdered sulphate of iron, one and one-half ounces; saltpeter, four ounces; nux vomica, one ounce. Should be thoroughly mixed and kept from air. Keep plenty of salt before horses at all times. Good rock salt may be used, but the pressed bricks of fine salt are to be preferred. Rock salt often contains injurious substances.

Preventing Shoulder Boils.

A vast majority of shoulder troubles arise from using collars too large. These move and shift with every motion of the horse. Even collars that fit reasonably well at first sometimes stretch and enlarge with use, while the necks, as they harden, grow smaller, even if the horses keep in good condition; hence chafing soon wears the neck or creates shoulder boils, and the suffering that follows increases the stress and wear upon the animal's vitality, often to such an extent that great loss of flesh follows. Frequently, even if there is no break to the skin, it is practically impossible for an animal to do its best in a collar that bears chiefly on the outside front of the shoulders or against the points of the lower shoulder rather than close up all around the neck.

Pineules—new Kidney remedy—are for all diseases of the kidneys and bladder. They act promptly in all cases of lame back, rheumatic pains, inflammation of the bladder, urinary disorders and weak kidneys. Sold by Ed. D. Heckerman.

Pennsylvania Battle Flags

Preparations are being made to fittingly display the priceless collection of battle flags carried by Pennsylvania regiments in the Civil War. The general appropriation bill passed by the recent Legislature carried an appropriation of $40,000 for the construction of cases in which these treasured mementos of the great struggle are to be placed in the rotunda of the new capitol. Plans are already being prepared for these cases, which will be constructed of glass and bronze. They will be illuminated by electricity and hermetically sealed. As soon as the designs are completed bids will be asked for supplying the cases, and no time will be lost in installing the battle flags in their permanent resting places.

If you are an enthusiastic lover of sports you certainly try to keep in touch with all sporting events. It may not be possible for you to attend all games personally, but you can keep informed by reading The Philadelphia Press, which covers all important sporting events. The scores of the major and minor baseball leagues are published in full, as well as the many other games. The Philadelphia Press employs a large staff of skilled writers, and with specially leased wire service, gives you the news of all the games and sporting events, completely, accurately, fairly and first. ## VALUE OF THE SILO.

By C. M. ADAMS.

The use of silos has three great advantages over dry feed methods. It is more economical, the feeding value of the product is improved, and silos make cattle feeding profitable, hence help to maintain soil fertility. The economy of silage results from the fact that cattle will readily eat the entire stalk in silage form, while in whole or shredded dry fodder a goodly portion of the stalk is refused. If fodder is stored in a dry shed the percentage waste in curing is not much different from the same in silos since there is a portion of silage on top that spoils, but if corn is husked in the field the same crop in silage is worth at least 25 per cent more.

If the crop is to be stored the silo is the most economical storage room, since nearly twice the amount of dry matter may be stored in the same space in the form of silage than as fodder; also crops may often be siloed that would otherwise be lost.

The greatest recommendation for a silo is that it increases the feeding value of a crop. The increased feeding value does not result from increased digestibility or from changed chemical composition, but chiefly from the physical effect and increased palatability of the silage; therefore animals may be induced to eat larger amounts. Owing to its succulence, silage, like grass, keeps the bowels regulated and tends to maintain that degree of healthful vigor so essential in hard worked dairy and breeding animals.

Some silo advantages are indirect. The most laudable thing about the silo harvest system is that it does away with selling crops off the land, thereby depleting soil fertility. It makes possible a system of stock farming whereby nearly all the fertilizing constituents are thrown back on the soil in the form of manure.

Chief among silage crops is corn. If a large amount of coarse feed is wanted it pays to plant some large stalk southern variety, but if a richer feed is wanted northern varieties, which yield more grain, should be used. In either case a variety should be selected that will mature before frost. In the south sweet sorghum has been found to be a good silage crop, as the tonnage per acre is greater than corn and the heads yield a fair percentage of grain. Red clover, alfalfa and peas have been used, but owing to their juiciness it is difficult to get silage from them that will not sour. Mixed crops have also been used, but they rarely pay for the added trouble of mixing. Plants with hollow stems are unsatisfactory since it is so difficult to force out the air.

There are several practicable types of silage cutting machines on the market. The blower elevator is used almost altogether now. In filling the silo care should be taken to tramp well next to the walls. It is best to take several days in filling, so that the air may be forced out more completely, thereby making a sweeter flavored silage.

Silage is pre-eminently a cow feed. It finds greatest favor with dairy cattle since it may be made to reproduce succulence of grass in winter or may serve to uphold the milk flow during a drought in summer. In dairies near cities where pasture is not available it often determines the difference between profit and loss by supplanting costly grain foods. It also makes possible the rearing of calves cheaply to replenish the herd. Some complaints have been made against the flavor of milk from silage fed cows, but there is no danger from this source if the silage is first class unless the milk is allowed to remain in open vessels in the barn and so absorb the odors.

On the general farm the good effect of silage on the health of the breeding herd and young stock in winter can hardly be overestimated. It is an excellent feed for ewes with lambs. It may be used in small quantities for maintenance horses, though it is too suppy to feed work horses.

Presidential Inaugurations From Washington to Lincoln

All the Way From "Jeffersonian Simplicity" to the Pomp and State of Modern Times.

DURING the early years of the government, before the capital was moved to Washington, the induction of a president, although a ceremony of great dignity and solemnity, was a very small and select affair.

In New York for nearly a fortnight preceding the great day of April 30, 1789, every tavern and boarding house had been thronged with visitors, and on the day before the inauguration every private house was filled with guests from all parts of the Union.

In the center of the procession, preceded by the senate and followed by representatives, walked George Washington. On reaching Federal hall the troops formed a line on each side of the way, through which the president, with his attendants, was conducted to agreed not to participate in the inaugural ceremonies, and the only uniformed military company in the District of Columbia declined to offer its escort to the president elect. A company of Revolutionary officers and soldiers, however, organized and tendered their services to General Jackson as an escort, and he rode to the capitol in an open carriage.

The second inauguration of Andrew Jackson was very simple. There was no military escort, no outward display and no procession.

The 4th of March, 1833, was a beautiful day, and the inauguration ceremonies of Martin Van Buren were elaborate, and the crowds in Washington severely taxed the capacity of the city. Van Buren was the first native American citizen inaugurated, president, for all the others had been born as British subjects.

A Notable Celebration.

The inauguration of "Old Tippecanoe" was one of the greatest events that ever occurred in the national capital. After the furious campaign which preceded his election great crowds gathered in Washington to witness the inauguration.

Exactly one month after this President Harrison died, and on April 6 John Tyler took the oath of office before William Cranch, chief judge of the circuit court of the District of Columbia.

It was a cold, rainy day when President Polk was inaugurated, but there was a long procession of the military as well as civic organizations.

Zachary Taylor had fine weather, unlimited noise and great ceremonies attending his inauguration. As the 4th fell on Sunday, he was inaugurated on Monday.

As President Taylor died on July 9, one year after his inauguration, Vice President Millard Fillmore took the oath of office on July 10 in the house of representatives.

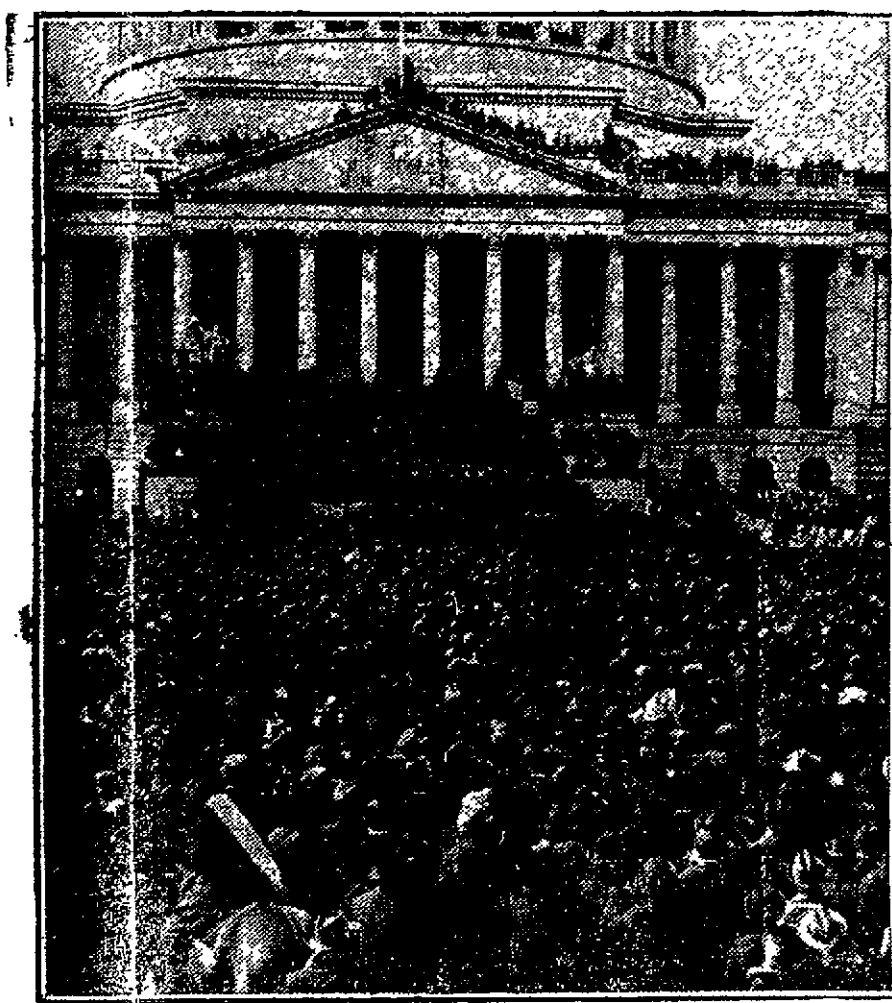

The inauguration of Franklin Pierce was unique in the fact that the vice president elect, William R. King, was not in Washington to be sworn into office, but was on a mission to Cuba and took the oath of office at a plantation on the hills above Matanzas at the same time President Elect Pierce was being sworn in in Washington. There was no inaugural ball.

The 4th of March, 1857, was a splendid day, and James Buchanan was inaugurated with much pomp and ceremony. After reaching the White House President Buchanan held a public reception and at night attended the inauguration ball, which was held in a building in Judiciary square erected for that purpose.

The Lincoln Festivities.

Abraham Lincoln had a bright, clear day for his first inauguration, but it rained and the streets were wet and muddy when he took his second oath of office. The martyr president went to the capitol from Springfield by way of Indianapolis, Columbus, Cleveland, Pittsburgh and Philadelphia, and, although he was given receptions all along the way, when he reached Harrisburg, on account of threatened violence, it was thought best to change the plans, and he proceeded to Philadelphia in one of the public cars, and, arriving there at midnight, he entered the New York sleeper and passed through Baltimore undisturbed and arrived in Washington at 6:30 on the morning of Feb. 23. He remained at Willard's hotel until the inauguration day, when President Buchanan called for him, and in an open carriage the party proceeded to the capitol. In order to avoid threatened violence the president and president elect in their carriage were preceded by a company of infantry, double files of the District cavalry on either side and infantry and other military organizations following. In the long procession there was a large car or float representing the constitution and the Union, each state being represented by a little girl dressed in white. A battalion of District troops guarded the steps of the capitol. The ceremony of swearing in the vice president in the senate completed, the entire party marched to the east portico of the capitol, where the great scene of swearing in Abraham Lincoln took place.

The civil war was in progress when Mr. Lincoln was inaugurated for the second time. There were evidences of the war everywhere, and gloom and sadness covered the whole land. The president went to the capitol early to sign bills, and therefore the parade marched down without him. The procession, however, was noteworthy.

INAUGURATION CROWD IN FRONT OF CAPITOL.

the chamber of the senate, where the representatives had assembled a few minutes before, and at the door the vice president received him and attended him to the chair.

The vice president then said, "Sir, the senate and the house of representatives are ready to attend you to take the oath required by the constitution, which will be administered by the state of New York." The president answered, "I am ready to proceed." The vice president and the senators led the way, and, followed by the representatives, Washington walked to the outside gallery, overlooking both Wall and Broad streets, which were filled with a sea of upturned faces. Washington's first official act was to attend service in old St. Paul's.

The second inauguration of President Washington took place in Independence hall, at Philadelphia, on March 4, 1792.

On March 4, 1797, John Adams was inaugurated president of the United States in the old statehouse at Philadelphia. Although the day was favorable, there was no parade or gathering of a large assemblage.

Although the generally accepted accounts of Jefferson's inauguration make it appear that he rode to the capitol on horseback without attendance and that the ceremony was of the simplest kind, a newspaper of the day states that "on this day President Elect Jefferson was escorted from his lodgings to the capitol by a body of militia and a procession of citizens."

Jefferson's second inauguration on March 5, 1805, was simpler, if possible, than his first.

A Ceremonious Occasion.

The inauguration of James Madison was the first ceremony which was made a great occasion. The day was ushered in by a federal salute and at an early hour the volunteer corps of militia began to assemble. So great was the crowd that the oath of office was administered in the old hall of representatives, now statutory hall, at the capitol. For the first time in the history of inaugurations the various branches of the government were ushered into the hall with ceremonious pomp and parade.

James Madison was inaugurated the second time on March 4, 1813. He had a military escort, and the ceremonies in the house of representatives were similar to those of his first inauguration. In the evening there was an inauguration ball at Davis' hotel, which is now the Metropolitan.

The 4th of March, 1817, was a beautiful day, and there was a large crowd to witness the inauguration ceremonies. The president elect and vice president elect left the private residence of President Monroe, attended by a large cavalcade of citizens on horseback. They were met at the capitol by the militia, and the ceremony took place in the senate chamber, which is now the supreme court room. As the day for the second inauguration of James Monroe fell on Sunday, the ceremony took place the following day, Monday, March 5.

John Quincy Adams was inaugurated on March 4, 1825, and the day was one of great demonstration and display. President Monroe called at the residence of the president elect, who then resided on F street, opposite the Elbitt House, and here they were joined by the military escort, and the procession, headed by the cavalry, moved at once to the capitol.

The inauguration of "Old Hickory" took place on March 4, 1829, and was a memorable one. The friends of President John Quincy Adams had

HECKERMAN LETTER

A Visit to the Heinz Plant in Pittsburgh.

Pittsburgh, Pa., June 13, 1909. Home-made. What a lot is bound up in this homely word. It is under the eye of the sainted mother that all is home made; her part is never stinted. You all know that the best she could do was done for you "Twas all a labor of love."

Now, I want to tell your readers something of the Heinz-made table luxuries and the immense plant. About 38 years ago Mr. Heinz, the founder of this great plant wherein they today make the fifty-seven varieties of good things to eat, started to grow horse-radish in a garden a few miles down the river. He grated it, and sold it, having for his warehouse and workshop a basement or cellar room of the house that in 1904 he bodily took up, moved it onto a flat boat and brought it to Allegheny where it now is a part of the great plant. Today they evaporate the horse radish and sell it in this way, it being much stronger than the old way. The customer now mixes a small quantity of this powder with water and has a very strong horse-radish. The great and marvelous growth is seen at a glance when we note the foregoing and follow this company, for from this modest start has sprung up the greatest works of the kind in the world; and when I say without any hesitancy whatever that it is the best regulated, the cleanest and the best equipped establishment for the manufacture of all the table delicacies, I mean it. I have visited many such plants in different sections of the country, but never have seen anything like this, and when asked by Mrs. Nevin Heckerman of Wilkensburg to accompany several ladies there on a tour of visitation, I said, "I'll go, but I have been to so many and they are all alike." Not so, however, in this instance.

Why, for cucumbers alone they have 61 salting house stations outside of this central plant of which I am trying to tell you. The "cukes" are taken from the vines and in half an hour placed in immense salting vats or tanks. Only 20,000 acres in "cukes" alone! Now what has caused all this growth? Look up and read, "Work every day as though you expected to live forever, and live every day as if you expected to die tomorrow."

As you pass from floor to floor you breathe pure air, for sunlight and fresh air are admitted at every turn. "Tis true that there is an odor of spice at the very entrance of each door. 'Tis a long walk to go all the way through, but it pays. It was in strawberry time when I was there; 45,000 quarts had been received the day before. These are all capped in an hour from their arrival at the factory and then are placed with the sugar, pound for pound, in the long row of shining kettles, after being thoroughly washed. After they are cooked a girl with a big wooden spoon dips in and a spoonful fills a jar. Applebutter (not made at this season) is however one of the least expensive, but with all that, one of the most palatable and wholesome of the preserves. I would like to have some schmier kase and apple butter just now, 4 p. m., Sunday.

The pickles are not touched with the hands; they are placed in the jars by girls with wooden tongs and properly placed in said bottles or jars with a small wooden rod. Every bottle is inspected and everything made has a standard and must be up to that standard or it is referred back to the packer. The labeling of these goods is just as precise.

I have often eaten the baked beans put up by this house, and after seeing these packed I will not hesitate to eat them hereafter. There is not a bit of solder gets into the inside of the can. The filling is a show in a sell, and I had quite a time to get the ladies to move along from these various places where they were packing. I told our guide that it was a mean shame to pull so many cucumbers before they were grown, when he had shown us millions of tiny little ones like your little finger.

We all had a sample of tomato soup and 'twas delicious. Machines of every device find room here as soon as their merit is shown. A late one is the labeling of 200 cans per minute, and I am told that there is a demand for new and tastier ways of working. These works were founded on horse radish, the latest, only a week old, is Heinz's p-nut butter, it makes and prints its own label, has its own skilled mechanics of every kind. Cost does not figure in the way of bettering anything here. The aim I am told, is the improvement of quality and the bettering of products. Their ketchup all passes through silver pipes. Cleanliness is visible from ground floor to roof.

Sixteen hundred employees are to be seen here, all happy and smiling but attending strictly to biz. There are dressing rooms and each girl has her own private locker, and those whose hands must come in contact with any of the various products must have their nails manicured once a week by ladies employed by the company. At noon 600 sit down to eat lunch, which they bring with them and deposit on the chair where they sit to eat. A plate, cup and saucer are provided for each one, and all the coffee, tea or milk they want for one cent a day. After eating they can sit and chat or go into the library and read. Here are kept 50,000 volumes and all the daily papers. Each girl wears a white gown at work, which is furnished by the company and loaned to them, but which they dare not take out. Should any be taken ill there is a place for such with a snowy white cot and a physician close by. There has never been a strike or a wrangle or dispute of any kind among the employees.

We have now been around and seen the stable and auditorium. The stable is the finest I have ever seen and I cannot describe how, by the touch of an electric button, the water is lifted to the horses noses nor the swinging partitions of the stalls.

The auditorium will seat 2,000 and just off from it is where all the guests are lunched at the expense of the company. We were served with seven courses, as follows: first, a sweet pickle on a toothpick; second, a cup of most delicious tomato soup, then some baked kidney beans; next a cracker with a sample of applebutter and one with a strawberry preserve; then sliced tomato on a lettuce leaf; next a cracker with sample of peanut butter on it; then came along two crackers, one with mustard and one with horse radish on them; last was a tooth pick.

Let me suggest that when any of your many readers are in the Iron City and have the time that they take several hours off and visit this plant. The party of which I was one each were loud in their praise of the place.

John Wy Boor is now a resident of Pittsburgh and may be seen at the Seventh Avenue Hotel any evening after 7. He looks well. The weather has been very brittle. Probably next week I'll tell you of the Bedford boy, a regular hobo, who has traveled all over the U. S. and was never known to go up three flights of stairs in order to get a square meal.

Yours truly,
M. P. Heckerman.

VETERANS' ASSOCIATION

Annual Meeting of County Organization Held at Coaldale.

The Bedford County Veterans' Association held its annual reunion at Coaldale on June 15, 1909. Excursion rates were provided by the railroads and special cars were sent from Bedford, which went directly to Coaldale, also trains were run between Riddelsburg and Coaldale.

On arriving at Coaldale a procession was formed, consisting of about 100 veterans and the Sunday School children, which was marshalled by Capt. R. W. Cook and Capt. I. K. Little. On arriving in the grove upon the grounds of the American Mechanics Association the meeting was called to order by S. W. Salkeld, Esq., Vice President, in the absence of Capt. E. Eichelberger, the President. An address of welcome was delivered by Rev. R. H. Colburn which sparkled with wit and was much enjoyed. The response to this was happily given by Comrade James Clabaugh of Hopewell. Dinner tickets were then distributed, and not only the veterans, but all visitors were generously provided for with the whole-hearted hospitality which that town never fails to extend.

In the afternoon Hon. J. H. Longenecker delivered a strong, patriotic address in his usual pleasing manner. Dr. Amersin Enfield also spoke. He began by reciting in an impressive manner Joseph Rodman Drake's tribute to "The American Flag" and concluded a fine, patriotic address with words of warm commendation for the rising temperance movement. Miss Ola Young recited gracefully and effectively Baker's "Black Regiment." Music was furnished by the Coaldale Band.

A rising vote of thanks by the veterans to the people of Coaldale was cordially given. Then followed the business meeting and election of officers for the ensuing year. Dr. A. Enfield was elected President and all the other officers of the preceding year were re-elected.

A baseball game between Coaldale and Huntingdon teams resulted in a victory for the latter. All visitors were impressed with the excellent order which prevailed and splendid hospitality of the town and neighborhood. The weather was ideal. The day was a great success.

INSURANCE AND PROTECTION FROM LIGHTNING

The firm of Josiah Neal & Company, of Indiana, Pa., at this time is engaged in canvassing the County of Bedford, selling their Famous Safe Copper Cable to protect buildings from lightning.

We are doing that which no other persons engaged in the same business ever did before; we guarantee the sum of five hundred dollars to be paid to any of our customers who has a building destroyed by lightning on which the Famous Safe Copper Cable is placed.

We are financially able to meet all our guarantees, and the guarantee to pay the sum of five hundred dollars in case of any building being destroyed by lightning, is binding upon us for the reason it is a part of the original contract with the customer having his building wired.

Agents for others engaged in the same business are maliciously and falsely telling some of the people in Bedford County that we are not solid financially and that our guarantee to pay the said five hundred dollars as an insurance is null and void in law—all of which is as false as it is wicked.

We, the members of said firm, hereby agree to pay to any person or persons the sum of one thousand dollars who can or will truthfully demonstrate that the Firm of Josiah Neal & Company is not financially good and able to pay all its obligations.

As to our financial standing we give as references: Farmers Bank of Indiana, Pa., First National Bank of Indiana, Pa., The Indiana Trust Company, Hartley and Company, Bankers, Bedford, Pa., and the First National Bank of Bedford, Pa.

The following is a list of well known citizens of Bedford County, whose building we have wired and insured:

W. R. Smith, Alum Bank, house and barn; Mrs. Effie M. Beegle, Ryot, barn; Emma Wendell, Alum Bank, house and barn; Jane Barefoot, Alum Bank, house; Fred J. Rock, New Paris, house; W. A. ### TO VOTERS OF COUNTY

Saxton Temperance Society Issues Address and Appeal.

To the Voters of Bedford County:

We desire to congratulate you on the splendid work done at the primaries, June 5, when the nominees for Associate Judge selected by the voters were both men pledged to no-license. The history of this movement dates back to the time that licensed hotels were forced upon the people of Saxton. Since then there has been an increase in the vote polled for the regular Prohibition party. At the borough election last February this party polled a larger vote than any other party. This was an eye opener and this movement had its root in that large vote. The organization was effected March 1 by the election of Augustus Troutman as president and C. L. Morningstar as secretary. Meetings were held weekly and considerable correspondence was carried on with temperance workers all over the county.

The organization endorsed J. W. Huff, a well-known business man of Saxton, for Associate Judge. Early in May the Anti-Saloon League joined in the work. They endorsed J. W. Huff for the Prohibition and Democratic nomination and S. J. N. Floor for the Republican nomination. It was generally understood that Mr. Penrose on the Republican side and Mr. Tenley on the Democratic side represented the license interests. Both are men of integrity, well qualified for the office. They were men able to poll the full vote of all who believe that moderate license is better than no license. We therefore congratulate the voters of the county upon the selection of S. J. N. Floor and J. W. Huff as the candidates for this office. We note with pleasure that of the thirty-nine boroughs and townships in the county only seven gave more votes to Mr. Penrose and Mr. Tenley than they gave to Mr. Floor and Mr. Huff, i. e., only seven voted against the no-license candidates. We are glad to note that the Borough of Saxton gave Mr. Huff fifty-five straight Prohibition votes and that every Democratic vote but one was cast for him at the primaries. This shows that the temperance people who know him best trust him fully.

It is not the purpose of this organization to turn the court into a legislature but it is our intention to place on the bench a man who will hear all the people rather than one class of people; one who will regard legitimate business interests rather than attempt to make legitimate a business which injures all enterprises; a Judge who will work to keep high the moral standard of the county.

Two counties, Greene and Mifflin, have no license. We believe that the citizens of Bedford County have the same rights as those of the two counties named.

We understand that both candidates are pledges against all licenses and we believe, that with the vote of his honor, Judge Woods, the election of either of these candidates means the closing of every licensed place in Bedford County, and that our county will become the third "white" county in this state whose shame has been its "blackness" on the question of strong drink.

Hence, as the representatives of the Temperance movement at Saxton, we tender our thanks and our congratulations to the temperance voters of the county, and we assure them that we are not asleep, but that we hold as our motto, "Eternal Vigilance and Correct Voting is the Price of Liberty from the Drink Traffic." We ask all to join us while we watch and pray that the great victory won at the polls may be confirmed at the election.

McGuire,
Bailey,
Livingstone,
Committee.

Riddlesburg

June 17—The game of ball played on the Riddlesburg grounds last Saturday by the Saxton and the Six Mile Run teams was a hotly contested one. The score was 2 to 1 in favor of Six Mile Run. Mr. Lauder pitched a very good game for the winning team.

The Broad Top Township School Directors met in Mr. Lauder's office at Riddlesburg last Saturday afternoon and organized by electing William Lauder President, H. C. McElwee Secretary and H. H. Brumbaugh Treasurer and District Superintendent. The term of compulsory attendance was placed at 75 per cent. and will begin at the opening of the schools. The High School will begin work on August 30 and will continue for nine months. All other schools will begin on September 13, and continue seven months. It was decided to pay off $1,000 of the bonded debt of the district. The new member on the Board is Samuel L. Winter of Langdondale.

H. H. Adams of New York City, President of the Colonial Iron Company, is cozily encamped at the mountain near the "Judith" mine, where he and his family expect to remain during the hot summer months. The people of Riddlesburg feel honored to have Mr. Adams locate with them and all unite in wishing him and his family a pleasant and a profitable vacation.

The large and much improved blast engines were put in motion at the furnace for trial on Tuesday and on Wednesday the new, lined furnace was put in blast. Everybody is glad and if the wishes of the people are realized the company will certainly have a prosperous year.

Dr. Sears will be at Bedford Wednesday, June 23, when he can be consulted on the eye, ear, nose and throat.

Point

June 16—J. Monroe Cable started for Johnstown early Saturday morning, accompanied by his daughter, Miss Myrtle, who is going to the West Penn Hospital for treatment. Miss Cable fell on the ice last winter on her right elbow, badly injuring it, which left her arm stiff. She cannot get her hand to her head and is otherwise disabled by it. She is now going to have an examination made of it, and if it can be helped by an operation it will be performed. It is hoped that the young lady will receive some benefit by going to the hospital.

J. W. Hissong, wife and two daughters, of Fishertown, and W. M. Feight, and Miss Della Yarnell, of near Bedford, were guests of the family of your correspondent on Sunday.

THE VALUE OF CONFIDENCE.

By EVELYN WETWORTH.
[Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.]

"My poor little girl," gasped old Tom Conyers on his deathbed, "I dread to leave you with nothing. If I could have lived six months I might have left you rich."

"Oh, I don't mind that, dad. I'll get along."

Sallie Conyers buried her father and packed up her belongings ready to leave the old cabin, near the mine in which all his hopes had been centered. She found a will drawn some time before, but now there appeared to be no occasion for a will. Then she went down to Colorado Springs, where she had an aunt to whom she could look for guidance.

When her father died Sallie was sixteen. A year later a vein was discovered in the mine in which she still had an interest. A dividend was declared that gave her $1,000, which by the terms of the will she could not have till she was twenty-one years old. But the vein soon died out, and the Conyers mine was abandoned.

Two years later a couple of speculators bought the property for a song, wiped out the old stock and organized a company called the Hope Mining company.

Meanwhile Sallie Conyers was earning her living in Colorado Springs. When she was twenty she became engaged to a clerk in a bank with a salary so infinitesimal that matrimony between the two seemed but a multiplication of their troubles. But the day was approaching when Sallie would come into her $1,000, and that would enable them to set up in a small way at housekeeping.

The day she was paid the money began happily and ended in misery. Willard Stearns, her lover, had been long looking for the day when they should be married. Now, when the money was paid, Sallie told him that she proposed to invest it in the stock of the Hope Mining company. He looked at her aghast.

"I have kept in touch with the property," she said, "and know something about what they are doing. My father worked that mine for three years. He used to talk to me about it because he hadn't any one else to confide what absorbed him. I know that when a certain event happens, if it ever does happen, a rich lode will be struck."

She got out her father's old maps, showing plot after plot crossing and covering one another, and tried to explain what her father had so often explained to her. But either he could not or would not understand. He took no interest in the angle at which the Sanborn lode dipped nor in the depth at which it crossed the Conyers. A gold mine to him meant a capacious maw capable of swallowing the hard earned money of simple minded people. He told Sallie that if he married her he had the prospect of living with a woman who had inherited a speculative mania. He preferred to go through life alone.

Sallie tearfully accepted the situation. The next day she visited the mine and introduced herself to the superintendent of the boring gang as the daughter of the former owner. He was very kind to her, answered all her questions, but showed no expectation of striking paying dirt. Indeed, he told her that he expected soon to abandon the work. Sallie asked him how deep was the hole. He told her it was 1,400 feet. "Promise me that you won't stop till you have gone 200 feet farther," she said. "Why so?" "Because you'll strike a rich vein at 1,500 feet."

He gave the promise, and Sallie returned to Colorado Springs. The next day she went to a broker and asked the market price of Hope Mining shares. They told her that there had not been a quotation for months, but if 2 or 3 cents were offered it would bring all she might wish to buy. She authorized them to offer 2 cents a share for as much as $1,000 would purchase. The offer was made and $30,000 par value of the stock secured.

Old Conyers had expected to make a strike at from 1,450 to 1,500 feet. Sallie waited a week in a terrible suspense. She had absolute confidence in her father's expectations, but her $1,000 was backing these expectations. The next day, looking at the quotations of Hope stock, she was astounded to see that it had been run up to 50 bid and few sales. The vein had been struck, the stock became worth $2 a share, and Sallie was rich.

Willard Stearns kept away from Sallie from the day he told her he would not marry one who had inherited a mania for speculation. One day he heard of a great rise in Hope Mining company stock and saw an item in a newspaper stating that the daughter of Conyers, who formerly owned the mine, had a large block of the stock. His heart for a moment seemed to cease to beat. He hoped Sallie would send for him. But she didn't. He wrote her a note congratulating her on her good fortune and received a very kind reply. This encouraged him, and he sought to renew the engagement.

"No," she said, "your reasons were good, though not exactly as you stated them. You and I are made of different stuff. I am, like my father, ready to risk all on that in which I have confidence. Your natural bent is in a different line. Together we should be constantly pulling in different directions."

Sallie Conyers turned out a great speculator and got enormously rich.

LATHAM'S HOME RUN.

And How It Figured in Having Him Dubbed "the Dude."

Charley Comiskey told the story of how Arlie Latham came to be called "the dude."

"One spring during Latham's term of service with the good old St. Louis Browns," said Comiskey, "he jumped into the opening game of the season and won us a victory by knocking out a home run in the last inning. Chris von der Ahe from his place on the grand stand saw Arlie make his sensational hit and naturally enthused. After the game 'der boss president' entered the clubhouse and in that peculiar dialect of his said to Latham:

"Arlie, my boy, you must be glad that I Chris, vas proud mit you, an' I will show you vat my feelings is by giving you the present of somedings for you to wear on yourself. Take dis order on mine own tailor an' go an' dress up yourself."

"Chris' order on the tailor read something like this:

"Give to Arlie der t'ings vat he buys, an' send to me der bill."

"Latham didn't do a thing on the strength of that order but replenish his wardrobe. For three days in succession he showed up at the ball park in a fine makeup, and every snit of clothes was brand new. On the fourth day Chris got a bill from the clothing people for $100. Naturally he sent for Latham and demanded an explanation.

"Why, Chris, old pal," said 'Lath,' "there's nothing to explain. Didn't you agree in that order you gave me to pay for what I bought, and haven't I just begun to buy? Why, old pal, I have only got three suits and expect to be measured for another this afternoon. What's wrong?"

"Arlie," replied Von der Ahe, "you vas de one infernal dude in de bizness. I will dis bill pay, but you vill yourself go to der tailor an' mit him explain vot I dink of der impudence of you yourself. You vill also stop mit de clothes you now have on an' do no more mit such foolishness mit der man vot pays your salary. Arlie, you vas one dude, an' if you play mit any errors dis afternoon I vill myself fine you all der bootiful clothes you have yourself bought."

"From that day Latham became known to the baseball world as 'the dude.'"

A Curious Structure.

On the road from Clifton down to Avonmouth the traveler will pass, in the Avon gorge, a curious structure to which a singular tradition is attached, relates the London Tatler. The story is that a person named Cook about a century ago was told by a gypsy in the Leigh woods that his only son would be killed by a serpent before he reached the age of twenty-one. To avert this he built a high tower and shut his son in the topmost room with the intention of secluding him there until the fatal age was passed. However, by accident a viper was taken up in a fagot to the room to light the fire, and it crept from the fagot and bit the boy so that he died. Therefore the tower was called Cook's Folly, and that is its name to this day, whatever is the true explanation.

HER LUCKY MISTAKE.

By OSCAR COX.
[Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.]

Miss Buckingham took up two notes and read them with a bored expression on her beautiful and aristocratic countenance. Then she threw them down and on her crest stamped paper wrote two replies. One was a declination to a proposal of marriage, the other an invitation for a proposer to call, intimating that he would be accepted. Addressing two envelopes, one to Hamilton Gillis, No. — East Forty-eighth street; the other to George B. Hillars, Union club city, she laid both notes and envelopes on the desk before her. Then she darkened the room so that she could not see any of them, mixed them, took up one of the notes, put it in one of the envelopes, sealed and stamped it, tore up the other note and envelope, threw the pieces into a wastebasket and sent the other to the mail without looking at the address. Her intention was to remain ignorant of the man she had chosen till he presented himself.

This was a dangerous thing to do, for the reason that Miss Buckingham had a number of suitors, and she wrote an illegible hand.

The next evening a card was handed to her bearing the name of G. B. Hillier. She glanced at it, gave a slight shrug, fingered her back hair before a glass and descended the stairs. On entering the drawing room she found a very different man from either of the two to whom she had written.

A great many things flashed through her mind in an infinitely short space of time. First, she had written one of the notes (evidently the one that had been mailed) to George B. Hillars, and it had fallen into the hands of Gustavus B. Hillier. This was not remarkable, since both men belonged to the same club. Second, how was she to escape the results of her blunder? Mr. Hillier was one of her many suitors, a suitor she loved and by whom she had supposed herself to have been jilted. Her pride rebelled against admitting that she had sent him to eat humble pie, and she did not wish him to know that she had intended to accept another.

"Marian!" he said, advancing, but stopped, repelled by her expression.

"Marian," he began again, "what does this mean? Have you led me to believe that you had seen your glaring injustice only to give me additional pain?"

"How did you happen to—to get?"

"Your letter? I returned today."

"No, no; I didn't know you were away. I mean—What right have you to—"

She balked again.

"Marian!" he exclaimed.

"No, no; I didn't mean that."

There was a short pause, after which he said, "When we parted last I told you that I could not brook—"

"Brook! It was I who could not."

"You? The objectionable words were spoken to me."

"What words?"

"What words? Why, in reference to that note I wrote you to which you designed no reply. I sent another asking for the cause of your silence. You replied that you would not address a note to a man at his club because a friend of yours had done so and her note had been shown to others."

"And do you mean to tell me that a trivial thing like that caused you to refrain from favoring me at the next collation?"

"A trivial thing like that!"

"Yes, shouldn't I have profited by my friend's experience?"

He stood looking at her in astonishment.

"Then the next time," she added, "I met you on the street you didn't speak to me."

"How could I when you walked by me with your—without looking at me?"

"Judging from your previous treatment of me, I supposed you intended to cut me."

"Did you expect me to bow to your shadow? Could I speak to a girl who would not even look at me?"

"You men are so—"

"So what?"

"Iritating."

"Anything else?"

"Stupid."

There was a long silence, which was broken by the man: "I believe you are right. I've been stupid. There is something about the feminine makeup that renders a woman oblivious to the frightful imputations she casts upon a man. You argued that, because some contemptible cad had betrayed a confidence, under the same circumstances an honorable man would do the same."

Miss Buckingham was silent. A faint glimmer of the fallacy of the syllogism began to dawn upon her.

"I suppose I ought to apologize," she said, "but I'm not going to do it after the way you treated me."

"My apology would be in order after, not before, yours."

"I prefer it should come first and mine shouldn't come at all."

"If I will agree to do all the apologizing will this nonsense that has been so long between us be obliterated?"

"I suppose so."

"And our former status will be renewed?"

"If you promise not to do so any more."

"Very well, I apologize for both. But what in the world did you mean by sending for me with no idea of a reconciliation?"

"I didn't. Not caring whom I married so long as you had treated me so badly, I sent the note to George Hillars. You got it."

"Great heavens! What a close shave!"

INDIVIDUAL HOG HOUSES.

A Good Type Used by an Illinois Breeder Successfully.

"Noticing articles from time to time on the construction of individual hog houses, I wish to submit the plan of houses that we use," writes an Illinois breeder in the Breeder's Gazette, Chicago. "I make them six feet square on the ground, both doors to be hinged so they will open and close readily. Twelve-foot boards make side and roof. I use good soft pine flooring, as it is lighter and much easier to move when necessary than heavier lumber. Four pieces 2 by 4 inches and six feet long are for sills. Two pieces 2 by 4 inches and six feet long are for ridge and plate. "If this plan is used it will be found much more satisfactory than a plain A shaped house. The door in the roof can be opened when the sun shines. Sunshine is the best tonic known for little pigs, and the door is essential when the sow needs attention at pigging time as a means of entrance and, as is sometimes the case, a very hasty exit.

"We lose a very small per cent of pigs farrowed in these houses."

Scab in Sheep.

The disease commonly called sheep scab is one of the oldest known, most prevalent and most injurious maladies which affect sheep. It is a contagious skin disease caused by a parasitic mite. Investigation has shown that the disease is not hereditary, as the parasites which cause it live on the external surface of the body. It is possible, however, for a lamb to become infected from a scabby mother at the moment of birth or immediately thereafter. The treatment must consist of external cures to "purify the blood." Proper hygienic conditions alone, though of importance in connection with the subject of treatment, cannot be relied upon to cure scab. The only rational treatment consists in using some external application which will kill the parasites. By far the most rational and satisfactory and the cheapest method of curing scab is by dipping the sheep in some liquid which will kill the parasites.—Department of Agriculture Bulletin.

Record of a Dairy Herd.

The records of sixteen cows of the Ontario experiment station showed that the different individuals ranged from 19,004 to 5,236 pounds of milk, and the profit over the cost of feeding ranged from $109.78 to $17.44.

Keeping Out the Bacteria.

The dirt and dust adhering to the cow's udder should be wiped off with a damp cloth before beginning milking.

BARNETT'S STORE

$2.00 Shoes

We sell a pair of women's shoes for $2.00 that make folks say nice things about them.

Not made in one style, either—you've got a chance to be pretty particular about the shape and style you like best.

And they've got about as much grace of line as any of the higher priced shoes, too.

Plenty of wear and comfort in a pair.

Children's Shoes

Don't buy cheap shoes for the children.

You may think them a good investment—at first—but they'll never pay a dividend in wear or satisfaction.

Budd's shoes cost more, but the wear-time is doubled, and the cry for "new soles" is shelved for a good, long time.

Budd's shoes cost $1.00 and up.

$3.00 Shoes

$3.00 will buy a mighty good pair of shoes nowadays.

Of course—we only know what it'll accomplish at this store.

Here—that sum will bring you comfort and style—and the kind of good leather and workmanship that makes you glad enough to come back for another pair on that distant day when you're quite ready to pay another $3 for another pair "just like the last ones!"

For men and women.

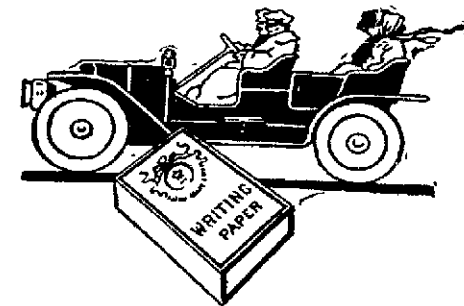

You may get along without a SEWING MACHINE in your home, but my, how tedious it would be to make three or four gowns by hand.

The price of a good machine a few years ago was almost prohibitive, but today we sell you the best machines on the market at less than half former prices.

This week several new machines have come to us. We are now showing the most complete assortment of styles ever brought to this town.

At your convenience, we will be glad to show you just what these elegant machines will do. We have sold over one hundred Vindex and Eldredge Machines in Bedford County, and repairs to date have not cost five dollars. Come in and see what kind of Machine $14.98 will buy.

An Easy Running Car

is the kind desired by every lover of the sport of automobilizing.

Did you ever hear of such a thing as an "easy running" writing paper?

Try your pen on a sheet of common, cheap, inferior paper, then change to a sheet of that made by

EATON, CRANE & PIKE.

You will note a vast difference. The pen will glide over the surface of the latter with an ease that will surprise you.

The secret of this is first, the high quality of the material used in the manufacture of these celebrated papers, and second, the beautiful finishes that are imparted to them by a secret process, giving them a smooth, glossy, absolutely perfect writing surface.

The Eaton, Crane & Pike papers, "Made in Berkshire," are from every standpoint the best. We carry the following kinds: Highland Linen, French Cambric and Hot Pressed Vellum.

Quality

"Seeing" isn't always "believing"—especially when you're buying Shoes.

Sometimes there are hidden faults—carefully concealed. That's because somebody wants to make a few cent's worth of extra profit.

If such footwear ever managed to get into this store, out it would go in a jiffy—but NOT to a customer's home. BACK TO THE MAKER!

Store Policy

We try to sell only trustable shoes. But that bit of carefulness on our part isn't responsible for all the frienes we've made. We do more than wrap up a pair of shoes and take your money. WE FIT YOUR FEET!—don't let one customer carry away one pair of shoes that are likely to prove painful. "Why do we talk so much on this foot-fit subject?" Because it's the most important part of an honest shoe store's business.

THIRD ANNUAL CONVENTION

Sunday School Workers of 14th District Meet in Friend's Cove.

The third convention of the fourteenth district of the Bedford County Sunday School Association met in St. Mark's Lutheran Church, Friend's Cove, June 9 at 2:30 o'clock. The convention was called to order by President W. F. Biddle. The devotional exercises were conducted by Rev. A. S. Luring. After some explanatory remarks by the president, the first topic, "How Can We Get the Old Folks to Sunday School?" was opened by E. P. Bingham. In his address he admonished the old folks to come to Sunday School and be an example to the young. He was followed by Rev. Luring, who emphasized the fact that the Sunday School is not for the children alone, but for the older folks as well. Too many think they outgrow the Sunday School. The church and Sunday School should be more closely united. In this connection Mr. Lysinger emphasized the necessity of the home department. After the singing of a hymn the next topic, "How Can a Sunday School Benefit a Community," was opened by Rev. J. A. Eyer, who referred to the great work done by Robert Reiks in organizing the first Sunday School in London. The next topic, "How Can We as Sunday School Workers Promote Christian Unity?" was opened by J. A. S. Beegle, followed by an able address by Rev. Eyer. Remarks were made by Rev. Luring, W. F. Biddle and W. S. Lysinger, after which we were dismissed by Rev. Eyer.

The evening session was opened with a hymn followed by scripture reading and prayer by Rev. Knable. Then the report of the election committee was read and accepted by the convention.

The following officers were elected for the coming year: President, J. A. S. Beegle; Vice President, Thomas Gibson; Secretary, Miss Ada Hunt; Treasurer, George Nevitt; Superintendent of Training Class, W. F. Biddle; Superintendent of Home Department, Godfrey Rusher; Superintendent of Cradle Roll, Mrs. Mary Sparks; Committee, D. C. Ott, M. A. Diehl, E. R. Koontz.

Then the question, "How Can Primary Teachers Best Prepare Themselves?" was discussed by Miss Della Beegle, Godfrey Rusher, E. P. Bingham, Mrs. J. A. S. Beegle and W. S. Lysinger.

The next topic, "What Are the Qualifications of a Good Sunday School Superintendent?" was opened by J. R. Irvine. Following him Rev. J. C. Knable gave an able address upon the subject, following this the cheerful song, "Growing Brighter Every Day," was sung, after which Rev. Knable opened the discussion of "What Benefits Will a Sunday School Receive from a Teacher-Training Class?" He gave an earnest and enthusiastic talk, which was followed by W. S. Lysinger who ably advocated the teacher-training class.

The report of the treasurer showed $4.42 in the treasury. The meeting closed with the hymn "Blest Be the Tie That Binds," and the benediction by Rev. Knable.

J. A. S. Beegle,
Secretary Pro. Tem.

more than three years, will shortly be transferred to St. Louis, Mo., one of the largest depots in the country and one of great importance. Major and Mrs. Wood and two children will spend some time during the summer with Mrs. Wood's parents, Dr. and Mrs. M. L. Culler.

Everything is in readiness at Bedford Springs for the opening on Saturday. The lawn and all surroundings are in excellent condition and many improvements have been made to both grounds and buildings. The same management that has successfully conducted the hotel for several years is again in charge, and, for the most part, the same heads of departments are at their old posts.

Rev. Edward A. G. Hermann has received from the Pennsylvania Free Library Commission a traveling library consisting of fifty books on various subjects, including fiction, poetry, science, history, religion, etc. The library has been placed in the parsonage near Cessna and the books are for the free use of any person in the surrounding country who may wish them. Cards may be had upon application.

The Church of God Sunday School at Saxton held an excellent Children's service last Sunday morning, which was well attended. The school has grown very rapidly. At the present time it has the largest enrolled membership of any school in Saxton, but the church building being small the attendance falls short of some others. It is the desire of those interested to rebuild, and as the first step in this direction the trustees have purchased the property which joins the church property.

LETTER TO BAYLOR BROS.

Bedford, Pa.

Dear Sirs: You are to paint Mr. —'s house for$— we won't tell your private affairs—no matter what figure, it's a fair price.

What paint'll you use? We're thinking of one, all paint and as strong as a paint can be; it'll take about 15 gallons, $75 for paint and painting.

Another, half paint; it'll take about 30 gallons of that, $150 for paint and painting.

The least-gallons paint, of course, will wear a long time; the other is good while it lasts. Least gallons, least cost, best job.

It isn't every trade that lets a man do a cheap job and make money and friends like that.

Yours truly
